An Albany man was injured, then arrested, in a single vehicle accident last night one mile to the west of Albany.

The highway patrol said 30 year old Jonathan Runnels of Albany received moderate injuries when his pickup, westbound on Highway 136, crossed over the center line and went off the south side of the road where it struck a concrete culvert. The pickup overturned onto the drivers side and was demolished.

Runnels was taken by private vehicle to Northwest Medical Center in Albany.

The report indicated Jonathan Runnels was arrested for investigation of charges that include driving while intoxicated, no valid operator's license, careless and imprudent driving, and no seat belt used.
