Two residents of Polo were injured last night when a car traveled through an intersection in rural Clinton county, went through a fence, a field, and into a farm pond, coming to a stop on its wheels. The driver also was arrested.

According to a report from the highway patrol, 47 year old James Bolin and 43 year old Karen Gooding each received moderate injuries and were taken to the Liberty Hospital. Their eastbound car was demolished in the accident six miles south of Plattsburg at the intersection of Routes C and J.

Another report from the highway patrol said James Bolin was accused of driving while intoxicated, careless and imprudent driving involving an accident, and failure to halt for a stop sign. Both persons were using seat belts.
