On the lighter side of the news. Twinkies are to return to store shelves. All Hostess snack brands are slated to return.

Twinkies will hit store shelves nationally by late July, Michael Cramer, executive vice president of Hostess Brands told NBC News on Thursday. "We expect to be making and selling in July," he said. "Probably the later half of the month before the product hits the stores."

All of the classic Hostess snack brands will return, some making their return in August and September. Hostess Donettes and some of the snack cakes will be among the first to return. And "Twinkies for sure," Cramer said.

In November, all 36 Hostess Brands plants shut down after an extended stand-off with the Bakery, Confectionery, Tobacco Workers and Grain Millers International Union.
