A northeast Missouri man who was facing state child pornography charges has now been indicted by a federal grand jury.

Nicholas Dickinson, 31, of Newtown, is charged in federal court with one count each of receipt of child pornography, possession of child pornography and possession of obscene visual presentations of the sexual abuse of children.

Dickinson is accused of receiving images of child pornography over the internet. He was believed to have over 700 images on his computer.

Dickinson has entered a not guilty plea in federal court in Kansas City. His trial is currently set for August 12. He is now free on bond.
